

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method for providing a three-dimensional image includes selecting a screen size or range of screen sizes for a three-dimensional image and scaling depth information associated with objects in a three-dimensional image to preserve perceived depths of the objects when 5 the three-dimensional image is presented at the screen size or within the range of screen sizes selected.